

[facs] Adult roles: Great Link for Info about Marriage

Janet W jwoodwardret at msn.com

Tue Feb 19 09:04:22 MST 2008

I was searching for some information about Marriage and Divorce and came upon this wonderful website.

It is the national Coalition for Marriage and Family. There are many Pro Marriage articles and video clips, as well as registration for a conference this summer in San Francisco where perhaps we could go.

Take some time to look at all this updated accurate information.

There are also some links for some complete lessons and training on many of the topics we teach. Also, a great page of short quotes. I would highly recommend this source for all ARR and ARFL teachers. There is also a link for a new book. Perhaps Pearl can order it for the "group" rate for our group.

<http://www.smartmarriages.com/index.html>

<http://www.fcs.msue.msu.edu/cfmf/>

<http://lists101.his.com/pipermail/smartmarriages/2005-October/002814.html>

Also, as an introduction to Families, I read this article and made my own questionnaire with similar questions and had them compare themselves to the national average.

<http://abcnews.go.com/print?id=3499089>

The New York Times has some lesson plans, which could be useful to us as well. Just put in a keyword in the search, and you can access a lesson plan with a NYT article, that you as a teacher are allowed to use and copy for your class. With all the copywrite laws, this is good to know.

<http://www.nytimes.com/learning/index.html>

I thought this one about Marriage and Divorce was especially good.

<http://query.nytimes.com/gst/learning.html?lquery=marriage&grade=6-8%2C+9-12>

Good Luck,

Janet Woodward